NEWSLETTER
CHILDREN FOR THE OCEANS

WELCOME TO OUR NEW AMBASSADORS !

This month, we are pleased to introduce to you six new ambassadors for the oceans : Marin, Lisa, Eléna, Morgane, Julia and Léopold ! They are full of energy and will represent CFTO and organize awareness sessions in schools (as soon as the sanitary crisis will be over). To know them better, you can find their presentations on our website !

LE COVID-19

LA CRISE ÉCONOMIQUE À VENIR

LE CHANGEMENT CLIMATIQUE

Source : BIODI - Vers un autre monde

SANITARY CRISIS : TIME FOR US TO RETHINK OUR HABITS ?

As we are facing a global sanitary crisis, some positive side effects are emerging as air pollution reduction, animals reappropriating their territory ; nature reasserting itself. But this are only short time pieces of hope. Scientific are unequivocal : if we do not deeply change our ways of life, this will only be ephemeral.

We need strong decisions from politics, companies but also the civil society to create the conditions of a different futur. This should be the time for us to consider that ambitious changes in our societies can have a long-term impact on climatic issues.

This is just as much relevant for oceans : if the end of the sanitary crisis lead to a revival of economy, industry and production on the same standards as before, oceans will be stuck with plastics issus, acidification and overfishing. Time for action is now.

SOCIAL MEDIA

Meanwhile the pandemic is spreading around the world, Children for the Oceans is trying to take part of the time which is allowed by this situation. Thus we are communicating as much as we can on all platforms. For instance, we created a new category named « Oceans Highlights » to share with you oceans actualities and raise the level of awareness about oceans issues.

If it is not already done, we invite you to subscribe to our accounts on Instagram, Facebook, Twitter and also on our website to be aware each time we are sharing something with you !

 @childrenfortheoceans

 @children4oceans

 Childrenfortheoceans

 https://childrenfortheoceans.eu